DAN and SARAH were the first International Ministries (IM) global servants in the Arab world. Dan is an adjunct professor at the Arab Baptist Theological Seminary. He promotes strategic Arab ministries through Enduring Love, a ministry that currently reaches people in seven countries throughout the Middle East and North Africa. Sarah pioneered a ministry, INSAAF: Justice and Compassion of Jesus, that assists migrant domestic workers (MDWs) in Lebanon working as maids. In addition to overseeing the integrated center, she visits and ministers at three prisons, advocates for the rights of maids and fights human trafficking. Sarah's journals are available on the IM website; Dan cannot post journals or photos online due to their sensitive nature. However, individuals can subscribe to his Enduring Love newsletter to receive updates.

“ MINISTRY STORY

Three months after Jessi was born, she was abandoned by her birth mother, a MDW from Sri Lanka, and her father, also a migrant worker from India. Jessi spent her early childhood in a Christian orphanage in Beirut, where she first heard about Jesus and accepted Him to be the true God.

Jessi is now 25 years old, pregnant and in prison. She was imprisoned by police who were trying to get to her boyfriend, a well-known drug dealer. When Sarah met Jessi, she appeared strong and determined, although she would frequently lapse into depression and sadness. Jessi said she has forgiven her parents even though they abandoned her and believes, “They did what they could to help [her] and themselves.”

At 5 months pregnant, Jessi is not getting proper medical care or nutritious food.

So, when we go on our weekly visits to the prison, we take her fruit and milk. Jessie has a strong character and is a survivor; she attributes this to her faith in Jesus. In prison, she has rediscovered her faith in Christ and is trying to live as a witness for Him.
